First National Title Insurance adds Compliance & Quality Assurance Officer to Executive Team

PLANO, TEXAS (June 26, 2013) First National Title Insurance Company (FNTI) CEO Chris Phillips announced the addition of industry veteran, Cherí Swanson, to manage their Compliance & Quality Assurance Division.

“As we continue to grow our independent agent network, our focus has evolved from compliance and verification to an enhanced analysis of key components of the agent and its business practices. Cherí Swanson has the experience and knowledge to implement a program that combines the industry’s “Best Practices” and “Agent Vetting” concerns with the needs of the independent agent,” Phillips stated. “Cherí is an important piece in the compliance puzzle and has proven her value as a resource to independent title agents. She has an incredible ability to develop personal relationships with the agents and provide them with the tools necessary to stay ahead of our industry’s growing regulatory demands.”

FNTI has quickly become a multifaceted resource for the independent agent. From strong, experienced underwriting support to knowledgeable, technical compliance and audit assistance, First National Title Insurance is developing the staff required to be the independent underwriter of choice.

With Demotech, Inc.’s analysis of the first quarter results, FNTI continues to show positive growth—currently now ranking 18th nationally. “The addition of five new agents in Arizona is just the beginning of a plan to increase our presence in a state we know well,” said Phillips. “We are encouraged by the economic resurgence in Arizona and Texas and will work with the independent agents to help them grow their business. By the end of 2013, our plans to expand into other states will be realized, and our network of independent agents will continue to grow.”
